

Barring and Safety Orders

What steps to take

WHAT IS DOMESTIC VIOLENCE?

Domestic violence is about one person using abuse to control their partner, ex-partner, or family member. It is about coercive control - a pattern of abuse, threats and violence - that is used to harm or scare the victim. This can include one or more forms of domestic violence.

Domestic violence can be:

PHYSICAL ABUSE

- Being choked
- Being hit/beaten
- Being kicked or stabbed

EMOTIONAL & MENTAL ABUSE

- Being called names
- Being put down or belittled
- Being blamed for everything
- Being kept away from your family and friends

SEXUAL ABUSE

- Being raped
- Being forced or pressured to take part in sexual acts
- Not being allowed to make decisions around family planning
- Being forced to watch porn or take or share intimate photos

FINANCIAL ABUSE

- Your money being controlled or spent by the abuser
- Being told what you can and cannot buy
- Being refused money for food and clothing for you and the children

Domestic violence and coercive control are against the law. One way to get protection from domestic violence is by applying for a court order.

If you ever feel you are in danger, phone the Gardai 999/112. You do not need to have a court order to phone the Gardai for support.

WHAT ORDERS CAN I APPLY FOR?

BARRING ORDER

A Barring Order is a court order which means the abuser must leave and stay away from the family home. The abuser must stop using or threatening to use violence against you and/or your children. The court might also order the abuser to stop watching or being close to your home, or stop them from following or contacting you and/or your children through social media, phone or other technology.

A Barring Order can last up to 3 years. Before the 3 years are up, you can apply for another Barring Order. The abuser can be arrested and charged if they break the order.

SAFETY ORDER

A Safety Order is a court order which means the abuser doesn't have to leave the family home. The abuser must stop using or threatening to use violence against you and/or your children. If the abuser is not living with you, the court might order the abuser to stop watching or being close to your home, or stop them from following or contacting you and/or your children through social media, phone or other technology.

A Safety Order can last up to 5 years. Before the 5 years are up, you can apply for another Safety Order. The abuser can be arrested and charged if they break the order.

TEMPORARY ORDERS

While you are waiting for the court date for your hearing, you can ask for a temporary order to protect you:

A Protection Order acts like a Safety Order but is temporary. It lasts only until your court hearing.

An Interim Barring Order acts like a Barring Order but it only lasts up to 8 (working) days.

An Emergency Barring Order acts like an Interim Barring Order. If the abuser owns the home you live in, but you are not married or in a legal partnership, you may be able to apply for an Emergency Barring Order. The abuser must leave and stay away from the home for 8 (working) days.

You can contact the Gardaí and ask for a special sitting of the District Court if you need protection during times when the District Court is closed (evenings, weekends, bank holidays).

Local domestic violence services and Women's Aid provide support with applying for court orders and preparing for court hearings.
